FRIDAY MORNING, MARCH 11 | 1864.

No flag but the Old Flag—the Red, White and Blue;
With the stars of a Union unbroken and true
Arise said defend it! ye sons of the brave,
Whose blood bought the banner your valor must save.

THE SPRING CAMPAIGN.—The late dispatches show that active hostilities are fully resumed, and that the rebel authorities are arousing their utmost exertions to gain early advantage. The recent disaffection, so distinctly and boldly manifested in North Carolina, has impelled them to take very stringent measures to overcome the struggling efforts of patriotic men, who are anxious once more to acknowledge their allegiance to the old flag, and to claim its invincible protection. We hope there is a Federal force in that State, available and sufficient to resist its invasion by the rebels, and to save it, while showing a disposition from being laid waste.

Evidently the leading traitors see and feel the necessity of prompt and vigorous action. Their very existence is trembling upon a pivot. Defeat now is utter ruin—temporary gains may inspire the despairing South with revived hopes, though the "fearful looking for of judgment" is plainly manifested in its Congressional and executive action and in every paper published in its treasonable limits.

THE DROUGHT IN CALIFORNIA.—Our exchanges are full of lamentations for want of rain. Every county is suffering, and the prospects of the grain harvest are very gloomy. From Contra Costa, and of the most productive in the State, a letter states:—

"Everything is drying up; and if we do not have rain soon the cattle will die of starvation. The hills look as dry and brown as in Summer time. Our crops, so far, look pretty well. The wheat looks green and fresh; but the barley shows the want of rain, the leaves are yellow and dry. The weather is as warm as in July, and if it continue for any length of time, vegetation will be parched from the face of the earth."

We might quote a column of similar reports, and we are convinced, therefore, that the alarm is not merely for speculative purposes, but is real, and is likely to effect the price of grain very sensibly. The farmers of Oregon ought, in view of this state of things, to be more than usually active in their arrangements for a great harvest. Those who secure good crops will be sure of large prices—greater we believe than any which have been paid for ten years. The best mines this summer will be the farms of the Willamette valley. There is no mistake about it, and we hope their owners will understand it and cultivate every acre possible.

PAY AND SERVICES OF GEN. I. I. STEVENS. The Committee on Indian Affairs, to whom was referred the memorial of Margarette L. Stevens, widow of General Isaac I. Stevens, made the following report, February 1st:

That said Isaac I. Stevens was, on the 9th of May, 1853, appointed Governor of Washington Territory, and ex officio Superintendent of Indian Affairs, in which capacity he served until the 31st day of May, 1857; that during that time, under instructions of the proper officers of the Government, he negotiated many treaties with various Indian tribes; that, by the treaty with the Flatheads and other Indians, the Government obtained a title to 14,720,000 acres of land, and by the treaty with the Nez Perces 15,400,000 acres were acquired; that by the treaties with the Quinaielt and Quillebute Makah, Dwamish, Walla Walla, Nisqually and other Indians, immense quantities of land were acquired by the Government; and that in 1855 he was party to making the treaty with the Blackfeet and other Indians east of the Rocky mountains. His labors were varied, extensive, important, difficult and dangerous, and were always performed with ability and fidelity to the Government. He received as Governor a salary of $1,500 per annum, as Superintendent of Indian Affairs a salary of $1,500. By the act of Congress, approved June 5, 1850, the Superintendent of Indian Affairs for the Territory of Oregon received a salary of $2,500 per annum. Your Committee believe that the duties performed by GEN. STEVENS were far more arduous and important than those performed by the Superintendent of Indian Affairs of Oregon, and as much of General Stevens' labor was under instructions of the Government, performed outside of the limits of his Superintendency, your Committee are of opinion that he is justly entitled to receive the additional sum of $1,000 per annum for said services. Gen. Stevens was killed at the battle of Chantilly, on the 1st day of September, A. D. 1862, at the head of the division which he was commanding, and while in the act of bearing the colors and successfully rallying the regiment in advance. Your Committee, therefore report a bill for the relief of the petitioner, and respectfully ask its passage by the House.

IDAHO MATTERS.—The Sacramento Union's Washington correspondent mentions the arrival of Col. Wallace and says "it is understood here that he favors the appointment of D. S. Payne, now United States Marshal of the Territory, to the vacant gubernorial chair. Payne is handsomely endorsed by the leading Unionists and Officials of the Territory. In a former letter I said that the President had made up his mind to nominate Caleb Lyon, of Lyonsdale, to the vacant Governorship, but Seward has made a dead break on the unlucky poet of Lyonsdale and he may not be able to stand against the Premier, the Oregon Senators and Senator Conness, who has also nominated a Californian now a resident of Idaho. Ex-Congressman Kellogg of Illinois, who has been waiting around in Washington all this session for a place, is also an applicant for the position, and it seems probable that it will go hard with our postaster of Lyonsdale, who has a brief biographical sketch from his own pen already in the hands of an enterprising correspondent, to be published when he is confirmed by the Senate."

EASTERN NEWS.

News of February 27th.

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—The Herald's correspondence, dated off Mobile, the 6th says the Hartford, with Farragut and six mortar schooners, are with the fleet, and it is rumored they will engage Fort Gaines to-day. Deserters state that 20,000 troops are in and around Mobile. Two iron-clads, the Tennessee and Nashville, are in the harbor. The former mounts 10 guns. 45 of the ringleaders in the recent mutiny at Fort Morgan are under sentence of death. If executed, the feeling of horror among the people will seriously injure the rebel cause in Mobile.

The Herald's Matamoras letter of the 5th says Gen. Herron is reorganizing his old division and procuring supplies for future contingencies.

A dispatch, dated Tunnel Hill, Ga., says: Early yesterday morning, Generals Crufe and Baird crossed Tunnel Hill bridge with their commands, and marched through the gap in Rocky Falls Range, driving the rebels from the Cleveland road into Rocky Falls Valley, thus turning the strong position the enemy occupied on the road leading from Lower Tunnel Hill to Dalton. Marching back again along the Cleveland road, our troops descended into Rocky Falls Valley, down which they swept, carrying everything before them, until they arrived near the line where the Cleveland road descends into the valley. At 11 o'clock in the morning Col. Gross's brigade was ordered to charge the rebels on this hill, which they did in a gallant style, driving the rebels before them. With his Indiana Battery he immediately followed to the top of the hill, whence he carried on a fierce artillery fire for the remainder of the day. The infantry skirmishing continued until half-past 1, when Turchin's brigade, of Baird's command, was ordered to drive the rebels from the hill nearly opposite that occupied by Gross. The order was obeyed with a will, the brigade charging the enemy from the foot of the hill, and driving them across the summit; but when they reached the top they were met by the enemy with a destructive fire from a superior force, posted half way down the other side, which compelled them to withdraw. The enemy did not attempt to follow. This was the most severe conflict of the day. Heavy skirmishing continued until night, when our troops began to retire, and to-day we are no further advanced than Tunnel Hill. As a reconnoissance affair it has been entirely successful. No further doubt remains of the enemy's presence at Dalton in strong force; at least, there are four divisions there. The country around Dalton is a succession of narrow valleys and rocky ridges, exceedingly available for defensive purposes. A part of Claiborne's division, sent to reinforce Polk, returned in time to take part in the fight. Our whole loss will not exceed 300 whilst that of the rebels is greater.

MEMPHIS, Feb. 26.—Gen. Smith's cavalry expedition, which left here three weeks since, has returned. From officers we have the following particulars: On the 18th the expedition reached Okalona. On the 19th marched to Egypt Station, on the Mobile and Ohio Railroad, where it captured and destroyed a large quantity of Confederate cotton; thence to Prairie, where it destroyed 100,000 bushels of corn and a large lot of Confederate cotton. Considerable skirmishing took place near this place. On the 20th the advance skirmished heavily with the enemy until 3 o'clock in the afternoon, when the column halted within a mile of West Point. On the 21st it moved west and found Forrest, Chalmers and Lee, ready to combine in an attempt to cut our column in two, without success. Very heavy fighting occurred both in the advance and rear. Two or three thousand rebels were on each flank and in our rear, and constantly charging. We lost three 4-pounder steel guns, which were spiked before being captured. All the ammunition was saved. Smith now fell back, ambushing the rebels as they advanced. The rebel loss was quite heavy. Smith burned every trestle work on the Mobile and Ohio Railroad, and destroyed several miles of track and a large amount of corn as he fell back. He broke camp at 1 o'clock in the morning, after resting two hours. Severe fighting took place in the rear all day, the rebels losing very heavily, as the roads were ambushed. At every available point volley after volley was poured into them at short range, but having a much larger force, they pressed our rear, a heavy rebel column moving on each flank with the evident design of reaching Tallahatchie in advance of our forces, and forming a junction to prevent our crossing. On the 23d and 24th the skirmishing continued. On the 25th the column marched 52 miles. Gen. Smith reached Memphis at 11 o'clock at night. Most of the expedition stopped at Collierville.

It was estimated that the expedition destroyed over 1,000,000 bushels of corn, and tore up and destroyed a number of miles of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad, burned many bridges, and trestle-work, and brought in over 1,600 horses and mules, 2,000 negroes, and 300 prisoners. The expedition was successful at every point, except the important one of forming a junction with Sherman, which is attributable, mainly, to the slow movements of the New Jersey and Pennsylvania Cavalry regiments, causing a delay of one week in starting.

The President's Amnesty Proclamation and Gen. Grant's order are extensively circulated throughout the country.

KNOXVILLE, Feb. 27th.—At last accounts Longstreet was still retreating, his headquarters being at Greenville. On Wednesday night our cavalry had a slight skirmish with his rear in the vicinity of Bean's Station. Schofield is pursuing, but owing to the rapid retreat of the enemy no engagement is expected this side of the Virginia line. The railroad bridge at Strawberry, and the track, was injured beyond the possibility of present use. Deserters say Longstreet is retreating to Richmond, leaving Johnston and Buckner to protect the Virginia border.

News of February 29th.

NEW YORK, February 29.—A special Washington despatch to the Times says a portion of the Army of the Potomac moved on Saturday, and was in successful advance yesterday. The Times further says, we have information of a formidable offensive movement by a large force from the Army of the Potomac, which was initiated on Saturday night, and may possibly be heard from to-day. The demonstration is a very bold one, but is in brave hands, and will be supported by a powerful force.

News from rebel sources to the 22d has been received via Mississippi river. The Atlanta Appeal says: Sherman's purposes are still mysterious—as to whether he will move against Mobile or turn eastward. Sherman, with sudden and unexpected rapidity, has moved against our weakest point. Mississippi is the Egypt of the Confederacy, where, if not ejected, he can subsist until Spring, and do more damage than winning a pitched battle. He is making war on our subsistence and resources, which to destroy is to defeat. Sherman marches in a solid body, with artillery in front, rear and flanks. His cavalry are close under the guns, and no straggling is allowed, and the rebel cavalry hovering around are unable to harrass him.

Anderson, the rioter in July, has been indicted for treason and other crimes.

The Herald publishes an intercepted letter dated Richmond, the 19th, stating that the rebel Capital is guarded by only two companies of heavy artillery, five light batteries, two companies of cavalry, with about 4,000 citizen soldiers, and that part of the North Carolina Regiments guard the Chickahominy. The garrison at Fort Darling has been reduced to 750 citizen soldiers, not to be relied on. It was believed that the appearance of any considerable force of Yankees would be the signal for a general stampede. Longstreet's forces are set down at 20,000, Johnston's at 35,000, and Lee's at 45,000.

A New Orleans letter to the World says: President Juarez reached Tamaulipas, and was preparing to yield up all the country to the French. It was reported that the French had shot Archbishop Sebastian and Bishop Corralas, but the report was not credited.

News of March 1st.

NEW YORK, March 1.—The Tribune's special despatch from Washington the 29th, says the latest information from the Army of the Potomac is up to 10 o'clock, Monday morning, at which time no battle had occurred between the opposing infantry forces. There was some skirmishing on the night of Sunday, but nothing of any account. It is evident that Lee does not intend to leave his entrenched position to fight, unless compelled by Meade to do so.

The Tribune's Washington letter of the 27th states that Logan's cavalry, from Huntsville, had joined Sherman at Selma.

The Richmond Examiner of the 27th says Gen. Taliaferro left Savannah on the 22d, to assume command of all the forces in Florida. Gen. Bragg is assigned to duty at Richmond, and under direction of Jeff Davis is charged with the conduct of military operations in the armies of the Confederacy.

Additional particulars of the late battle in Florida have been published. Our forces consisted of 4,500 infantry and 400 cavalry, with 12 pieces of cannon. The enemy's strength is reported at 13,000. The engagement was between swamps, protected by earthworks and rifle pits, and commanded by Gen. Gardner, of Port Hudson fame. The report that no skirmishers were thrown out is untrue. After our defeat we retreated in good order. Gen. Vogel had arrived in Jacksonville and would take charge of the defences there.

News was received at the Navy Department to-day, that during the latter part of January two French frigates entered Acapulco and proceeded to overhaul everything, threatening to bombard the town if any resistance was offered. They examined all the Americans in port, and caused much consternation among neutrals. Accounts via Panama state that a French frigate is keeping strict blockade at Acapulco, and has seized a quantity of material as contraband of war. The United States frigate Lancaster and the Saginaw are there. The former leaves for Panama on the arrival of the French Admiral, and the French will then take possession of the town, probably without resistance.

WASHINGTON, March 1.—Orders have been issued to the Provost Marshal General in each of the several Atlantic States to be fully prepared to commence the draft on the 10th of March, and make it in every sub-district which shall not have raised its quota before the 1st of March. Volunteers between the 1st and 10th of March may be deducted after the draft.

PHILADELPHIA, March 1.—A special to the Evening Bulletin, from Cincinnati the 1st, says: Gen. Thomas has advanced on the enemy at Dalton, from Tunnel Hill. It is also stated that he has been reinforced by a considerable number of men. If this be correct, a severe engagement is inevitable very soon.

CHICAGO, March 1.—A prominent gentleman just from Washington, says the President informed him that the destination of Sherman was Mobile, and that the object of Gen. Smith's expedition was not to effect a junction with Sherman, but to act as if that was the intention, for the purpose of drawing the attention of Lee, Forrest, Roddy and other rebel cavalry chiefs from Sherman. If this be true, the object of the expedition was entirely successful. Smith's retreating forces have been pursued by the three rebel commands to within 60 miles of Memphis, thus relieving Sherman from any danger from them.

News of March 2d.

NEW YORK, March 2.—Liverpool advices say the Confederate cruiser Florida had escaped from Brest under cover of a dense fog. The Kearsarge, on being apprised of the Florida's sailing, stood to sea the same evening. The shipping interest was considerably excited over this fresh danger to vessels now on the Atlantic.

A special dispatch to the Tribune from Washington the 1st, says that from information from the Headquarters of the Army of the Potomac under to-day's date it would seem that Gen. Sedgwick was sent to the extreme left of the enemy to engage his attention and to divert his vigilance from the Rapidan fords. Kilpatrick, seizing advantage of this, crossed the river, and proceeded to make a rapid detour to the south-west of the enemy's positions around Orange Court House and Gordonsville, on the extreme right of Sedgwick, via Madison Court House and Stannardsville. Our latest information from Kilpatrick is up to 8 o'clock, yesterday morning, when he was reported at Spotsylvania, and on the trot. We have positive knowledge that Custer's long lines of cavalry dashed rapidly through Madison Court House before daylight yesterday morning. It is reasonably supposed by the Tribune's special correspondent, who left the Court House at noon that Custer engaged the enemy at 1 o'clock, for heavy cannonading was heard at that hour in the direction of Orange Court House and continued up to dark. News from Madison Court House, dated Monday noon, says that Sedgwick's corps marched at sunrise on Saturday, with four days' rations, and bivouacked at night seven miles beyond Culpepper, and reached Russell's ford, on Robinson river, on Sunday forenoon, where most of the corps bivouacked, and Sedgwick established his headquarters. Talbert's brigade pushed on to Madison Court House, with the cavalry under Captain Chalin, and the first division of the Third Corps came up to the support of the Sixth on Sunday night at 1 o'clock. On Monday morning, Custer's cavalry and horse artillery marched out of town to the Rapidan, which was crossed at Barnett's.

Later news from the front indicates that a battle took place this morning at Stannardsville, between Custer's cavalry and the rebel infantry. Rumors persistently place Kilpatrick at about 25 miles from Richmond. We are in possession of Spotsylvania Court House and Madison Court House, but as a draw back the swelled waters of the Rapidan have risen six feet over the level of yesterday.

A special dispatch to the Times of the 1st, says: The latest information received from the Army of the Potomac is to 9 o'clock this morning. Heavy musketry firing was heard early this morning to the extreme right, in the direction of Stannardsville, where it was supposed Custer's cavalry were engaging the rebels. Madison Court House, as well as Spotsylvania Court House, are in our possession.

There is an evident disposition on the part of Lee to avoid a battle by keeping behind his entrenchments.

CHICAGO, March 2.—The Washington Chronicle of the 28th says Senator Sherman's bill to amend the Pacific Railroad law, provides that shares shall be $100, instead of $1,000 each; the number of shares to be 1,000,000, instead of 100,000. Persons holding $1,000 shares may have hundreds instead. The company can take land for the track, trees, and other material for construction; damages to be assessed by a commission. The Company can use coal and iron on public lands, and may have such lands that have been entered upon under Government title, which are to be made up by others on either side of the road for 20 miles, and the Company may select good lands for sterile ones over which the track may pass.

Section 5 is amended by striking out the word "sixteen" and inserting "twenty-five;" by striking out the words "may be paid in Treasury Notes, etc.," and inserting "shall be paid in the same manner as bonds of the United States are made payable;" the time for designating the general route, filing the map of the same, and the time for the completion of that part of the Railroad required by the terms of said Act, are extended one year. The Central Pacific Railroad in California is to build but 25 miles yearly. One-half of the compensation for services rendered the Government shall be required to be applied to the payment of the bonds issued in aid of the construction of the road. The grades and curves are not to exceed those of other roads in the United States, in successful operation. The iron may not be American manufacture, exclusively, and the company may import iron rails and locomotives free.

NEW YORK, March 2.—The World's special says: Since the disastrous retreat of Smith and Grierson upon Memphis, the most serious apprehensions are felt in official and political circles. Their retreat interrupts Sherman's communications all along the line of the Mobile and Ohio road, and deprives his army of important sources of supplies, without which he cannot maintain his ground; and, worse still, deprives him of his cavalry force, upon which he relied to prosecute his operations. Military men believe Sherman will now be obliged to retrace his steps and return to Vicksburg. A private letter, dated the 20th, that Sherman had reached Meridian, but hearing of the cavalry retreat, dared not proceed. He had erected earthworks around the city. The report of his occupation of Selma is discredited, it being 100 miles from Meridian. The latest news from the South reports Polk between Selma and the Tombigbee, watching Sherman, and prepared to dispute his passage of the river.

The Richmond Examiner of Feb. 27th says: A dispatch from Gen. Johnston, yesterday, states that the enemy was skirmishing all along the line, north and east from Dalton. It is not doubted that the enemy is making a general advance in Georgia.

The President has ordered that all punishments to deserters now under sentence of death, be mitigated to imprisonment during the war, at the Dry Tortugas.

NEW YORK, March 2.—The following private dispatch was received in this city yesterday:

Have just received the following, signed by Gen. Butler, Fortress Monroe: "I have information that a party of rebels have already left Nassau to attempt the capture of the Ashuwalt steamer with treasure."

DUNCAN, SHERMAN & Co.

News of March 3d.

CHICAGO, March 3.—Dates from New Orleans to the 23d February (via Cairo) give the total vote of Louisiana at the State election at 9,203. Michael Hahn's majority over Flanders is 3,595—over Follows (conservative candidate) 3,542. The other candidates on Hahn's ticket are elected by about the same majority.

CAIRO, March 3.—A band of 80 guerrillas, dressed in Federal uniforms, surprised a company of the 1st Mississippi (colored) Regiment, who were standing guard about a mile and a half from the main body of the foraging party, on the 15th February, below Grand Lake. They were captured, disarmed before assistance could reach them, and all were killed or mortally wounded except two.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—The Star says: Gen. Custer returned to this side of the Rapidan from his cavalry expedition, having successfully accomplished the part of the work which he started out to do. He harassed the flank of Lee's army considerably, and when near Stannardsville, surprised a rebel camp, which he burned and totally destroyed. He captured a number of prisoners and horses. Gen. Custer did not lose a man. Nothing officially is known of the whereabouts of Kilpatrick. It is said, in well-informed circles, that on Monday he was at Spotsylvania Courthouse, which is 65 miles from Richmond. An officer who arrived here to-night from the Army of the Potomac reports that when last heard from he was within 18 miles of Richmond. This, however, may be a mere surmise, there being no communication by which such fact could be ascertained. Custer's move was to strive to draw off the attention of the enemy while Kilpatrick scurried in another direction. The supposition is that he has gotta fair start, with no danger in the rear, he has certainly had sufficient time to reach Richmond, if such was a part of the plan of operations.

PHILADELPHIA, March 3.—The Richmond papers announce "with unfeigned regret" the appointment of Braxton Bragg as Commander-in-Chief of the rebel army over the head of Gen. Lee.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—The correspondence between Gen. Butler and the rebel Commissioner, Gen. Ould, relative to the exchange of prisoners resulted in a declaration of exchange, in which it is agreed that all persons delivered at City Point up to the 24th January, 1864, are exchanged.

A Mobile despatch of February 23d says fire was opened that day upon Fort Powell by six monitors and four gunboats, and the shelling was continued all day. The Florida affair is made much of and with reason, but the rebels conceive severe losses on their side. The editorials of the journals before us are full of brag about the bright prospects of the South and the desperation, demoralization, bankruptcy and utter helplessness of the North.

NEW YORK, March 3.—The Richmond Examiner of February 24 says an official despatch was received at the War Department last night from Polk, stating that Sherman's forces had evacuated Meridian and were retreating in two columns towards Vicksburg. It was supposed that, finding his designs on Mobile thwarted by his cavalry reinforcements being intercepted, and being in distress for supplies, was forced to abandon his expedition and take the desperate expedient of retreat through a country stripped of supplies and laid waste by the advance. Whether he can retreat successfully remains to be seen.

THE MERCANTILE LIBRARY.—We are pleased to learn that the subscriptions to the fund of the Portland Mercantile Library, are rapidly being collected. An amount will soon be realized, that will be equivalent to $4,000 in New York, which will purchase enough of books, etc., to form a pretty good starter to the Library. There is nothing better than a good Library Association like this, that could have been established at the present time in Portland. It is said by many that such things are the outcroppings of wealth and leisure; that at present, while we are so young a city, our people so much in a hurry, so much occupied in tearing down and building up, in establishing themselves in business, and making themselves homes, that they have not the time to devote to matters of such a character. It is true we are a young city, but we are full of life and vigor. The men who are making the city of Portland are men who do not shrink from toil, or from mingling in the fierce struggles of life; they are men who have met and conquered difficulties, and who expect to meet and conquer difficulties still, and know

Sickness and Death of T Starr King

The Bulletin of last Friday gives an extended biographical notice of Mr King from which we take the following paragraphs concerning the last days of his life Our readers will peruse them with melancholy interest:

About two weeks before his death he first complained of not feeling well, and of some trouble with his throat His friends urged him to be more careful, and not expose himself to the air, but he thought it was only an ordinary case of sore throat, and declined to confine himself or call in the aid of a physician until Friday last In the evening he had his regular reception, and between 10 and 11 o'clock went down to a social gathering at the church, though still suffering On Saturday evening, he had invited a number of friends to supper, but when evening came he was unable to appear at table While supper was going on, however, a bridal party came to be married Mr King had received no previous intimation of such a visit, and sent down asking to be excused saying that he was sick and confined to his bed The party replied that they had set their hearts on being married by Mr King and would come up to his bedside sooner than be defeated in their desire With that spirit of self sacrifice for which he was so remarkable, he then said he would get up and go down into the parlor He did so, and went through the ceremony but though it was performed in a very few minutes, he was so weak at the conclusion that he had to be assisted up to his room On Sunday morning his congregation were alarmed by the announcement that he was unable to preach The attending physician pronounced it a serious case of diptheria, and said he should have been called at least a week sooner —it had been too long neglected The disease gained strength, and the patient's prostration increased On Wednesday however, the complaint seemed under medical control, but so prostrated was the patient that for two days it had been difficult to keep up his vital energies Yesterday he was visited by an attack of pneumonia, and experienced great difficulty of respiration At 6 o'clock last evening the attack was very severe, and Dr Eckel feared that it might prove fatal, but the patient possessed wonderful recuperative power, and seemed to revive, passing a very comfortable night (It was always a peculiarity of Mr King that he possessed a remarkable degree of vitality, and that notwithstanding his feeble frame he would endure a vast deal of fatigue, being sustained by the sheer force of indomitable will It was remarked also that his constitution yielded to medical treatment with remarkable ease, a half grain of quinine producing more effect on him than two grains on an ordinary man—so sensitive and delicate was his physical organization that he could drink neither coffee nor strong tea) A consultation of physicians yesterday had pronounced the disease checked, though they feared his system might not be able to recover from its prostration During last night light stimulants were administered him to keep up the vital forces, and he seemed getting along remarkably well until half past 5 in the morning, when a second attack of pneumonia set in—the doctor having previously stated that he feared that his patient could not survive another attack

This second attack was not more violent than the first one, but the patient's strength was so expended that there was little or nothing for medicine to build upon When taken with the first attack, Mr King had remarked to some one standing by "I know what this is, it is a severe attack of pneumonia?" When the second occurred he said to the Doctor "What is this? Is this pneumonia too?" The Doctor replied that it was Mr King then asked Can I survive it? The Doctor told him no he thought he could not. "How long can I live?" he asked "Not a half hour" "Are you sure I cannot live longer than that?" The Doctor told him he feared he could not. Friends then asked him if he had anything to say He replied "Yes, a great deal to say, I want first to make my will"

Up to this time, for two or three days he had not been able to speak above a whisper, but responding to the power of his will, his voice now resumed its old power and tone and he spoke nearly as loud as ever A friend sat by his bedside, and he dictated the will—it was read to him afterwards and he assented to its correctness by saying all right" at the end of each paragraph exclaiming at the close It is just as I want it" He then hesitated a moment, and dictated an important correction, A pen was given him and he signed it in a handwriting as firm and bold as he ever wrote in his life, even punctuating the abbreviation of his name and putting an accustomed flourish beneath the signature Then came the sad task of bidding his friends who were present good bye One by one they came up to his bedside in every instance he greeted them with a cheerful smile as though he were only going on a journey of a day or two grasping their hands and saying in that sweet, pleasant voice of his Good bye! Some one asking how he felt, he said "Happy, resigned, trustful," then repeating the 23d Psalm in a clear and well-modulated voice At the verse Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil for Thou art with me thy rod and thy staff they comfort me" he raised his finger and his eyes as calmly as though in his pulpit, his voice as firm and strong as ever After this exertion his strength seemed to fail him Sinking back in bed he said "It is all right for me, but she will feel it"—pointing to his wife Friends again gathered round his bedside and he bade and smiled them good bye His little son being brought in he said Dear little fellow—he's a beautiful boy" kissing his hand to the child as the nurse carried it away in his arms This was his last act on earth Calmly closing his eyes he seemed to go to sleep A great and good and gentle man was dead

COMING FROM ALL QUARTERS —A St Louis correspondent says that several returned adventurers from the gold mines of Utah have made statements relative to the mineral wealth of that country which are considerable of a sensation Already quite a number of advertisements appear in the papers of this city offering cheap and speedy transportation to the New El Dorado It is expected that their will be a very large emigration to the plains this season

THEATRICAL —The great Drama of the Octoroon was performed for the last time last evening at the Willamette Theatre, to an appreciative audience The characters were well sustained especially Wahnotee by Mr J H Taylor and Zoe (the Octoroon) by Mrs Howell Jo a Sunbeam by Miss Morgan was a finely rendered part and Mr Myers in the hard role of Pete was a good imitator of the Irish character Taylor has improved in this evening Jessie Brown or the Relief of Lucknow is up and Miss Perrine and when properly rendered is delightful, the present company is adequate to the task of doing it justice Mr J W Leighton arrived in the Panama and will soon appear at the theatre

The Story of a Necktie.

A CASE OF CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE.

(Concluded.)

Nothing unusual occurred to my knowledge on that night, and on the next morning I started to return at an early hour, having remained over night in the village. I had reached a bridge which spanned the creek a short distance from the village, when I discovered something lying in the road near by, and picking it up discovered it to be a very fine necktie, which I surmised some one had lost the evening before. Having promised Mabel to return in time for church, and thinking that perhaps it would be a good plan to wear the necktie in order that the owner might be found to reclaim it, I placed it about my neck.

On leaving the house for the village again, I was met at the door by Farmer Watson, who immediately questioned me in regard to the tie, saying that it belonged to Henry. I took it off in a moment, not desiring to wear anything which belonged to him, and replaced my own.

Proceeding to the village, Mabel and myself had hardly seated ourselves in the little brown church, when we were startled by a loud shuffling of feet near the entrance, and turning quickly round, I saw the constable of the village hurrying down the aisle, and looking directly to where I sat. In an instant I was seized by the collar of my coat and dragged from my seat. I had no time to resist such an uncalled for proceeding, and it would have been in vain for me to attempt resistance, as the sheriff and others were there to assist the constable. Before I had time to ask the meaning of all this, I was conveyed to the jail, and the door was closed on me. I was a prisoner, incarcerated in a felon's dungeon! What could it mean—what had I done to deserve such treatment?—surely there must be some mistake!

Thus I thought, and wept and hoped—yes, I wept like a child and hoped for mercy in my innocence. It was dark, very dark, in that lone and dreary cell, as hour by hour I listened for returning footsteps.

It must have been night when I was suddenly startled by a soft, sweet voice, calling me by name from the outside. I knew the voice; it was Mabel's. She had come to console me in my misery and bid me not despair. I felt my way to the massive iron door, and begged of her to reveal the mystery.

"Hush!" she replied; "all will be right—Harry Pierce has been murdered and thrown into the creek, and you are suspected as the murderer, but I know that you are innocent."

"Blessed, assumed sweet Mabel!" I exclaimed in one breath, "as God is my Judge, I am innocent!" but she had gone.

The mystery thus revealed, I was shocked; the thought of my being branded as a murderer crazed my burning brain. I, the poor orphan, with no friend on earth to vindicate my innocence. Oh, I cannot recount or clothe in language the agony which I endured on that terrible and sleepless night. To others, the morning sun rose and shone the same as ever—to me, there was no sunshine; all, all seemed dark and foreboding.

During the day, I was conducted from the prison for the purpose of being examined. Harry Pierce had disappeared on Saturday night, and though rigid search had been made for him, he could nowhere be found. Farmer Watson was sure he wore the necktie found in my possession, and traces of blood were visible on the bridge, it therefore became evident he had been murdered and his body thrown into the creek. We were enemies, and the evidence was considered circumstantial. I was convicted, and sentenced to be executed. Liberty is sweet, and death under any other circumstances is preferable to the gallows, and so I thought as I was being conveyed back to jail, after receiving sentence. With one bound I broke the grasp which held me, and ran for my life! I took the road for Watson's house amid the cries and shouts of my pursuers.

I flew like the wind, and never looked back until I reached the gate. Fortune favored me, heaven inspired me! At the gate stood the farmer's horse ready saddled. I bounced on to the animal, and setting him to his work of traveling as he had never done before, I reached the town of ——— at daybreak next morning.

The train for Boston departed in a short time, and I reached that city safe, and felt somewhat relieved. I knew I must be cautious, and therefore sought a part of the city where I was not known.

After a long study as to what course I should then pursue, I determined to secrete myself on some vessel and depart for California. I picked up a paper to ascertain what ship would depart first, and my attention was attracted by a notice, in large type, which read something like this:

"FIVE HUNDRED DOLLARS REWARD!

Escaped from the county of Berkshire on the 10th inst., a convicted murderer by the name of ——, about twenty years of age, light complexion and dark hair. Had on when he left, black cloth coat, light pants and brown felt hat. Whoever will arrest said person and deliver him to any officer of the law, shall receive the above reward. Signed by the sheriff."

I looked around me to see if anybody was looking at me, and being satisfied on that point, I found that a ship was advertised to leave on that day.

I soon reached the wharf by going through back streets and secluded alleys, and going aboard slyly, entered the forecastle, where I stowed myself away among the sailor's luggage. I was not discovered until the ship was well out to sea, and only then by sea-sickness, which forced me to vomit.

I was treated rather roughly at first, but on promising to do my share of the work during the voyage, I was soon considered as good as any sailor on the ship. After a passage of four months, we entered the Golden Gate, and as soon as my feet touched the shore, I offered up a prayer of thanks to Him who holds the destiny of man in the hollow of His hand.

I was in a strange land, but I felt in my heart of hearts that I was a freeman! The clear blue sky once more bent in beauty over me, and the dark clouds of adversity had passed away.

I will not tire your patience by relating all that afterwards occurred. Industry brought its reward, and I prospered in that Golden Land. Three years since I came to this territory and invested my capital in its silver mines, whose mineral wealth has astonished the world. It was just one year ago that I met a stranger, late at night, who asked me for the price of a night's lodging. The man was roughly clad, and I had no reason to doubt that he was actually in want; therefore I did not hesitate for a moment to place in his hand a gold coin.

"Thank you!" he exclaimed; "but, sir," he continued, as I turned to resume my way, "will you be so kind as to give me your name?"

"Oh, never mind my name; only consider it a gift from a friend to the unfortunate," I answered.

"But I must know your name," resumed the stranger, in an emphatic tone.

"Then it is ——"

"Did you ever live in Berkshire county, Massachusetts?" he half affirmed, half asked, at the same time stepping nearer to me and gazing wildly into my face. I had no time to reply, for in an instant he threw his arms around me and ejaculated, in a stifled voice,

"Do you not know me?—I, Harry Pierce.—I, who would have you hung—who would murder you on the gallows for a fancied wrong wrought by jealousy? O! thank God we have met again! Tell me, oh say that I am forgiven!"

It appeared he had recognized me—not only by name—for he saw the scar over my left eye, which he had caused some ten years before, with a fence-picket, during a scuffle. If I was proud of my success for ten years, I was prouder at that moment to know that Harry Pierce lived, and that I could return to my native State with his living testimony to vindicate the honor of my manhood, and wipe away forever the stain of murder which the people of Berkshire county had so cruelly fastened on my name.

And I did return. Harry Pierce was with me. The village had not changed much; still, many of those we knew before had passed to a better land. Mabel Story was still there, and she was living a single life, though many and many had been the hearts which worshipped at her shrine. The story of how Harry had dropped his necktie in the road and strewn the bridge with blood was soon told and all parties were forgiven.

I then purchased a comfortable farm for Harry, adjoining Farmer Watson's, and Mabel Story and myself were married, when I returned to this Territory, and shall make it my future home.

The necktie which I received from you is of the same figure and pattern as the one which came so near costing me my life, and I shall endeavor to keep it as a reminiscence of other days.
